One referral, the whole team

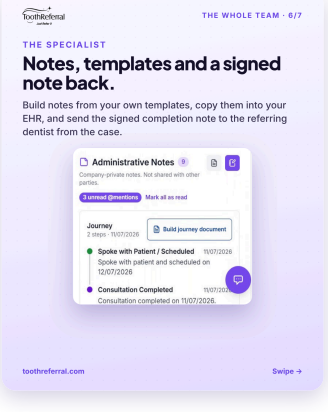

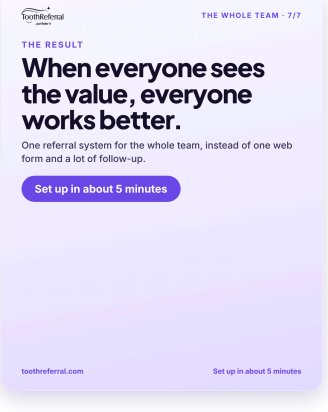

Hook (first line)

Count the people who touch one referral in your office. It's more than you think.

Caption

Count the people who touch one referral in your office. It's more than you think.

The referring office sends it. The front desk finds it and calls the patient. The office manager makes sure nothing slips. The assistant needs the X-rays. The specialist writes the notes and sends the completion note back.

With a web form, each of them is working from a different email, phone message or sticky note. With Tooth Referral, they all work from the same case:

• the referring office sends it complete, and sees the status without calling
• the front desk has every new referral in one list
• the office manager can see who did what, and anyone can pick a case up when someone is out
• the assistant has the X-rays on the case, and can ask for a newer one in a message
• the specialist builds notes from templates, copies them into the EHR, and sends the signed note back

When every team member sees the value, the whole office runs better. That's what a referral system is for.

ONE REFERRAL, THE WHOLE TEAM

Who touches a referral in your office?

More people than you think. When all of them work from one system, every one of them gets time back.

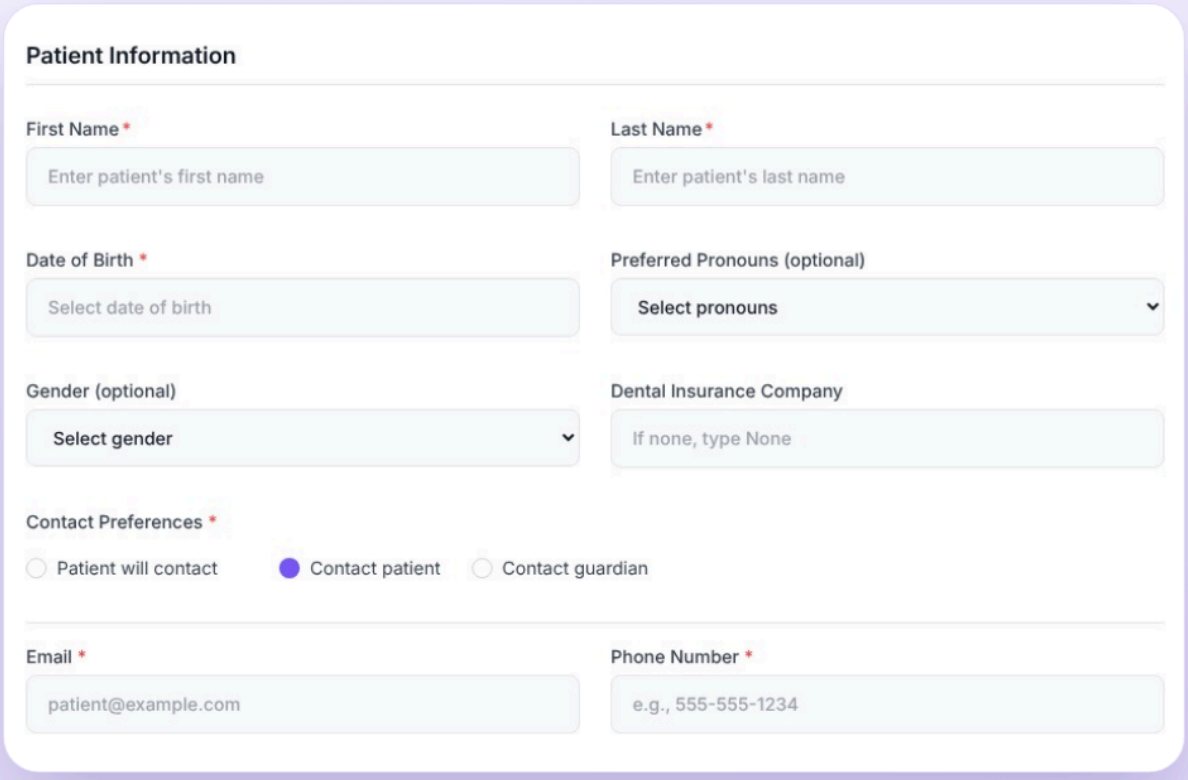

- Front desk
- Office manager
- Assistant
- Specialist
- The referring office

ToothReferral

THE REFERRING OFFICE

Sends it once, complete.

Procedure, tooth, X-rays and the patient's insurance through a secure link, in three short steps. Then they can see where it stands without calling.

THE FRONT DESK

Every new referral in one list.

No hunting through emails, voicemails and faxes. Status, received time and the sending office on every row.

THE OFFICE MANAGER

Who did what, and when.

Every step is logged on the case. If someone is out, anyone can pick it up and see exactly where it stands.

THE ASSISTANT

The X-rays are already on the case.

Need a newer image? Ask the referring office in a message on the case and it arrives the same day.

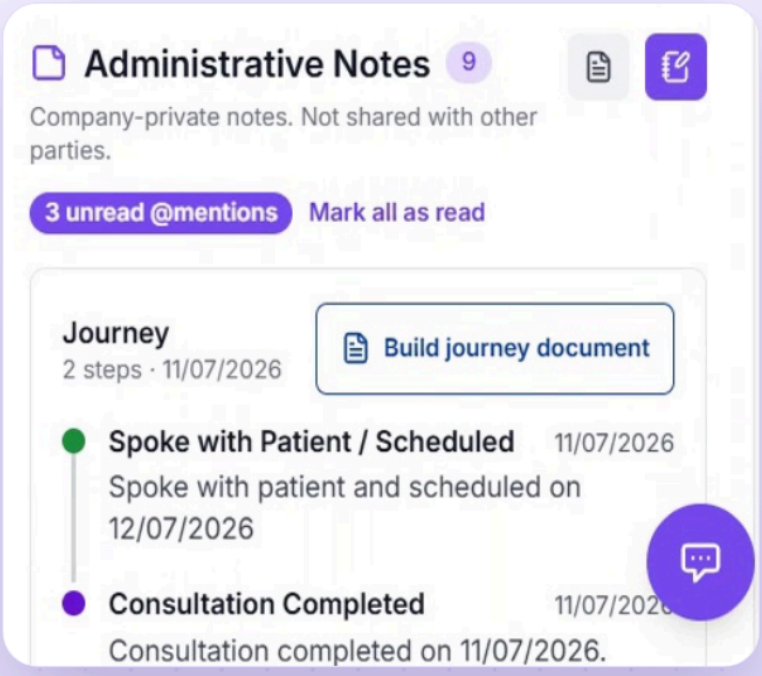

ToothReferral

THE SPECIALIST

Notes, templates and a signed note back.

Build notes from your own templates, copy them into your EHR, and send the signed completion note to the referring dentist from the case.

THE RESULT

When everyone sees the value, everyone works better.

One referral system for the whole team, instead of one web form and a lot of follow-up.
